

Dear FCC, Although XM does not provide traffic and weather info in my city yet, it would be an extremely valuable tool for me since I travel for a living and the local info is woefully inadequate statewide. As far as quality and variety goes, without XM in my car there wouldn't be any. All the stations (very few per metro area and you can look that up) in my state are owned by a few companies so the offerings basically stink. I used to just listen to cd's until I got XM. I respectfully urge you to reject the NAB's petition 04-160. You and I both know that this is very similar to the networks opposition to the cable industry and the cable industry to the satellite industry. Now look how far we've come.
